

Get informed, get involved L'environnement, faites-en votre affaire

This flyer lists a number of sources, both government and private, that can help you to learn and participate. During Canadian Environment Week, why not resolve to get informed and get involved?

Cet encart contient une liste des principales sources publiques et privées de renseignements sur l'environnement. Durant cette semaine, pourquoi ne pas en profiter pour vous renseigner sur ce que vous pouvez faire en vue d'améliorer la qualité de votre milieu de vie?

Environnement
Canada

Federal government

The federal government is responsible for the interprovincial and international aspects of the environment, as well as those in the Yukon and the Northwest Territories. Although many federal departments are involved, Environment Canada has the main responsibility. Environment Canada offices are as follows:

Headquarters — Administration centrale (Ottawa-Hull)

Immeuble Fontaine Building
Hull, Québec
K1A 0H5

National Offices — Bureaux régionaux

17th floor, Bank of Montreal Tower
5151 George Street
Halifax, Nova Scotia
B3J 1M5

Provincial governments

The provinces are responsible for the protection and enhancement of the environment within their own boundaries. The responsible provincial departments are as follows:

Information and Education Branch
Ministry of Environment
512 Fort Street
Victoria, B.C. V8W 1E6

Communications Branch
Alberta Environment
9820-108 Street
Edmonton, Alta. T5K 2J6

Libraries and bookstores

Most of the available information about the environment can be found in books, periodicals, newspapers, films, radio and television broadcasts. University, school and public libraries are excellent sources of material on the subject. You can also find books about the environment in your favorite bookstore.

Gouvernement fédéral

Au Canada, le gouvernement fédéral s'occupe principalement des aspects territorial, interprovincial et international de l'environnement. Même si ces questions intéressent plusieurs ministères, Environnement Canada est le principal responsable. Voici les adresses d'Environnement Canada :

Bibliothèques et librairies

La documentation disponible sur l'environnement se trouve sous diverses formes : livres, revues, journaux, films, émissions de télévision et de radio. Les bibliothèques scolaires, universitaires ou municipales constituent une excellente source d'information sur le sujet. Vous pouvez également trouver des livres sur l'environnement chez votre librairie préférée.

Citizen's groups

There are hundreds of citizen's groups active in Canada, organized around environmental interests. These range from preserving wilderness areas to compacting wastes, from opposing nuclear power to protecting the fragile northland as it undergoes development. New groups are being organized constantly, some continue to operate for years, while others dissolve after the resolution of the particular issue around which they were organized. To learn about environmental problems in your own community, contact your local or regional associations. Most of these groups can provide extensive information, as well as resource persons to advise you. But there's always a need for other public-spirited people — for people like youself — to help them in their work. So join the organization nearest you.

Associations de citoyens

Au Canada, il existe des centaines d'associations de citoyens dont les activités ont trait à l'environnement : la préservation des régions sauvages, le compactage des déchets, la lutte contre l'utilisation de l'énergie nucléaire, la protection des terres fragiles du Nord, etc. De nouveaux groupes se forment tous les jours : certains fonctionnent pendant des années tandis que d'autres se dissolvent quand le problème à l'origine de leur création a été réglé. Vous avez tout à gagner en communiquant avec une association de ce genre. Ces groupes possèdent pour la plupart de la documentation sur des sujets précis ainsi que des personnes-ressources qui peuvent vous renseigner. Mais, ces groupes ont aussi besoin de bénévoles, de gens comme vous pour prendre le relais. Joignez-vous au groupe le plus près de chez-vous. Et l'environnement, faites-en votre affaire.

Canadian Environment Week

La semaine canadienne de l'environnement

Preserving a healthy and productive environment is everyone's business. It affects us all in our jobs. The best safeguard our environment can have is millions of Canadians who know about, care about and work for a better environment.

Chacun est responsable de la protection de son milieu. Que ce soit à la maison, à l'école, au travail ou durant les loisirs, chaque individu est influencé par son environnement. Des millions de Canadiens qui sont renseignés et qui agissent, voilà le meilleur moyen de protéger notre environnement.
